WORKIN'

Milligan College's faculty and staff took a break from their normal work routines Friday for the college's Campus Work Day. The day invites faculty and staff to help with the final touches of sprucing up the campus for the beginning of the fall semester. Projects included painting, trimming, landscaping and cleaning around the 195-acre campus. Faculty and staff volunteers also picked up trash along Buffalo Creek and Toll Branch Road. At left, Christine Heaton, Mark Nester, Curtis Huskins and Michael Bailey work near the McMahan Student Center during the work day.
