

DEDICATION

Before every man there are two distinct and divergent courses; the one the way of self-aggrandizement, luxurious ease, and predatory wealth; the other, the highway of self-abandon, fidelity to humanity, and unflinching defense of Christian Idealism. It has ever been the glorious province of the College-man to choose the latter. In keeping with the scholar's time-chastened ideals, a most creditable proportion of "Milligan Men," graduates and under-graduates, are with "the colors," others are calmly awaiting the country's call. To these brave lads, one and all, who in the name of sweetheart, wife, mother, home, and God, go forth in proud disdain for hardship, in contempt for danger, in defiance of death, to live, if need be, the whole of life in one supreme moment, we gladly and gratefully dedicate this volume of The Periscope.
