You are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hidden. Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven. Matthew 5:14, 16

The life we live for four years in northeastern Tennessee isn't one that is easily explained. It isn't always perfect, but it is one thing always: vibrant. The full spectrum of emotions, experiences, ideas, friendships and discoveries leave us with a full range of memories.

Our lights shine vibrantly to our own community and to everyone we meet. It's the brilliant, dynamic, energetic, passionate, animated life we lead as Christians that makes us unique.

Remember your vibrance no matter where God leads you on this earth. It's only through his grace that we are able to live a life worthy to be called a light of the world.

Vibrant Vibrant Vibrant

Energetic

Student Life

Energetic. This word describes a typical student's life or maybe lack of energy. We need energy to get everything accomplished. Every day we get up, attend class, go to work, participate in clubs and organizations, play sports, and try to squeeze in time to hang out with our friends. Somehow we always manage to get things done.

This year was packed with plenty of things to keep the students busy. Social Affairs had their annual Fall Formal and the always popular Wonderful Wednesday. New clubs were formed such as Habitat for Humanity. "I really enjoy being in this club because we do things for other people who need help and it makes them happy which makes me happy," said senior Susan Henderson.

This was the last year for students will be going to help out at Crank's Creek. "Although we will not be going to Crank's Creek, we look forward to serving God at other locations," said senior Jennifer Soucie.

This year there were some changes and things that stayed the same. Whatever happens we'll always have memories.

David Nydegger, Aaron Scott, Tony Jones, Isaac Schade, Deke Bowmen, and Andrew Hopper a.k.a the Couch Crusadors stole Dave Harris's couch and drove it to the North Carolina border.

Many pranks like this are pulled throughout the year.

Andrew Spayde, Evan Patrick and Tony Jones fight over the right to throw the frisbee next.

Theatrical

Oedipus the King

written by Lindsey Vogt

Emmanuel professor and Milligan alum Paul Blowers brought to life Teiresias, the soothsayer to warn Oedipus of his demise.

The Greek classic exploration of Greek "Oedipus the King" tragedy. Vibrant colors directed by Dick Major, were used along with a wide variety of rhythms and movements to captivate the audience from the very beginning. Every element, from onstage and off, worked together to create a unique drama. Working alongside students from ETSU was a great way for Milligan to branch out into the community and I consider it an honor to have participated in this endeavor.

Mr. Major's artistic eye and creative mind helped make Oedipus the King a success.

Creon (senior Adam K. Meyers) won acclaim from critics in his role of the brother-in-law of Oedipus.

Oedipus (ETSU student James Cronin) and Iocaste (ETSU student Amy Tallmadge) agonize over the dooming prophesy they must face.

The chorus brought the story to life through rhythms, words, movement, and song.

The entire cast and crew of the Milligan/ETSU collaborative production.

Relaxation

Fall Activities

There are many different things to do in the fall. When students first arrive many of them start off the year by going to the county fair. The leaves then change colors and students hike to Laurel Falls and to Roan Mountain.

The year starts out with the welcome back picnic. Everyone looks forward to some good food and the water slide.

Twirp week is also during the fall. There was no bachelor auction this year, but there were still plenty of activities planned.

The activities included bowling, skating, the corn maze and of course the midnight movie at the Bonnie Kate Theater in Elizabethton.

"I love Twirp week," said sophomore Grant Foster, "because for once the woman has to ask the guy out and they have to pay. Could it get any better?"

Sonfest was a new activity planned to get the community involved with Milligan College. It was a fair-like setting complete with games and face painting.

"I had such a great time painting the kids' faces," said junior Amber Neil. "They got so excited and got the biggest smiles on their faces."

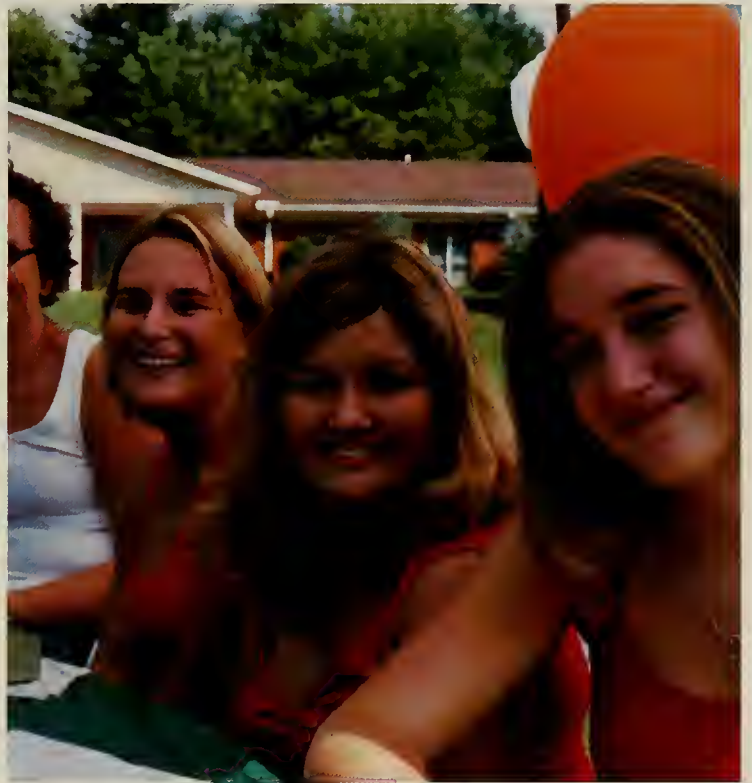

With a face like this, who wouldn't want to be twirped by junior Leslie Burke?

Make sure your hands are steady! Sophomore Lisa Saca paints Rachel Bloch's face.

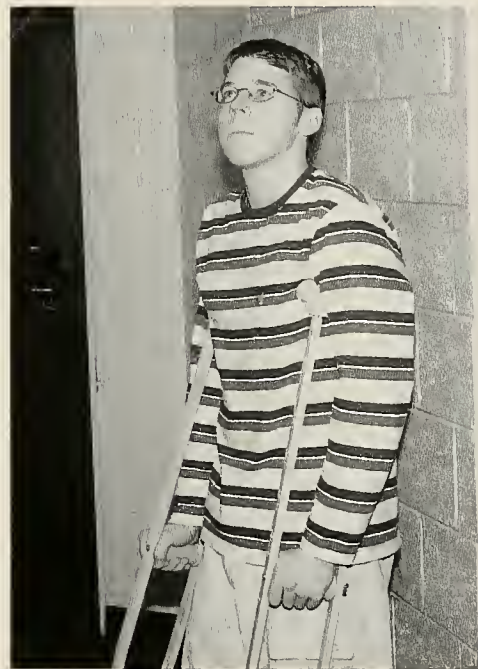

Sophomores Amy Fox and Julie Grimm take some time to catch some rays at SonFest.

Junior Michelle Moore twirped Russ Cassens to go bowling. Wonder if she'll let him win?

They told me this thing was a back scratcher! Tim Cassens and John Ankiker hang out in the halls of Webb.

Russ Cassens takes a moment for himself before making the trek up Webb's stairs with his crutches... again.

Diligently writing Humanities papers, Josh Kaminsky and Richard Greatti take a well-deserved break from their keyboards.

The Webb Praise Band! David Nydegger plays the guitar while he and Aaron Scott sing in the dorm.

Dorm that Never Sleeps

Webb Hall

Our moms are proud, the beds are made! Mark Curry, Josiah Potter and Grant Foster strike a perfect yearbook pose.

I just beat level 6,486,000! Bart Price plays video games to pass the evening (and early morning!) hours.

"Mom, I really need you to come visit... I'm all out of clean socks." Deke Bowman chats on the phone.

Activities

Social Affairs

Social Affairs was led by Katie Lloyd. "Social Affairs is a lot more work than people think, but I was fortunate enough to have a great team who thought up creative ideas and went through with them." she said

Social Affairs started off the year with a drive in movie at the State Line Theater. "I really enjoyed this because when I first got to Tennessee I didn't know what there was to do, and this allowed me to hang out with my new friends," said freshman Lauren Doughty.

"One of the goals of Social Affairs is to get people out and doing stuff," added Lloyd. "I also think people would get mad if Wonderful Wednesday didn't get planned."

These girls are getting ready to go to the Bonnie Kate for the midnight movie Sweet Home Alabama. With free candy, who couldn't resist?

What a stud!
Senior Nathan
Henry poses

Reed at the Fall Formal.

Is that Nelly with the bandaid?
No it's just Trevor Brown,
Ryan Coby, and Adam Bisessi dressing up like thugs.

No more meal plan! John Lawson attacks the freezer to find food.

Jennifer Openshaw, Carissa Ellis, and Jennifer Soucie lounge in MSA #3.

Emily Fuller, Tony Jones, and Laura Jones contemplate the best way to get a cafeteria tray out of Sutton without getting caught.

Kegley, MSA, Quillen, Williams

Andy, we told you that if you keep making that face it'll stay that way. Stacy Flynn, Dave Guyer, Andy Irvin, Heather McMullen, John Isley, and Eric Starr hang out during open dorms in Kegley.

Carrie and Bart Taylor enjoy the view from their MSA front porch.

Travis Deyton stretches after a cat nap in his favorite chair in Quillen.

Sweetheart Confaux

The name changed a little and credit was not given, but the skits were still funny. Six students were chosen from each grade to perform a skit in pairs. There was one girl and one guy in each pair. This year included Rachel Mesaris and Chris Byrd who parodied the Drs. Magness in their early days at Milligan. Sophomores Crystal Van Meter and Matt Mueller did a parody of hit reality TV show, Joe Millionaire. Juniors Mary Helms and Adam Barras explored poetry in the art of courting. Seniors Evan Patrick and Kristin Speak each had their ideal proposal including a written proposal from Nathan Flora.

Junior Adam Barras reads poetry to Mary Helms at Sub 7. The two date until they can't find any more make out spots on campus.

Freshman Chris Byrd asks Rachel Mesaris to the Winter Formal. She finally says yes.

Jakieth Hairston and Brad Passwater see if they can get some candy during confaux.

Sophomores Crystal Van Meter and Matt Mueller play the roles of Clara and Matt Mullethair. The sophomores won the sweetheart confaux.

Hilarious

The Odd Couple

Opposites attract- at least at first. While theatre professor Richard Major was on sabbatical in the spring, December 2002 graduate Adam Meyers stepped up to the plate and directed The Odd Couple. This hilarious play takes a look at two recently divorced women who decide to move in together and help each other through a time of transition. What's the catch? They're exact opposites. Olive (Missie Mills) is a disorganized sports writer who owns potato chips as old as the Reagan administration and Florence (Christan McKay) is a neat-freak who likes to clean the buttons on phones in her spare time. A double date with two Spanish men ends in hilarious disaster and these two friends rapidly become each other's worst nightmare. This ticket was the hottest in town for its performances and most evenings were standing room only. Bravo!

"Let me know if this hurts, because I really have no idea what I'm doing." Missie Mills as Olive, tries to soothe her friend, Florence (Christan McKay)

It's a Florence sandwich! Manolo (Josiah Potter) and Jesus (pronounced Hayzoos- Dave Guyer) hug their new found kindred spirit, Florence (Christan McKay)

“Stand back, this is tear gas!” Florence (Christan McKay) defends herself in a roommate brawl.

What a crew! The whole cast did a great job and put on a hilarious show that won't be forgotten.

It must be Friday night- break out the Trivial Pursuit! Laura Jones, Missie Mills, Danisha Bethune, Jess Carter, and Emily Fuller play the roles of five best friends.

“Are you on Valium?! Have you ever thought about taking it so you can keep up with the rest of us?!” Sylvie (Jess Carter) tells Vera (Emily Fuller) how it is.

Jesus (Dave Guyer) cries over leaving his “thpouse” in Barthelona.

Dinner & Dancing

Formals

Around 200 people attended the Fall formal this year at the Peerless restaurant on November 2, 2002.

This year was different because dinner was included. After dinner, the dancing began including many songs that required dance moves such as the Cha-Cha song and some swing dancing songs.

No one wanted the night to end and stayed on the dance floor until after midnight. During the dance a few couples from the restaurant wandered in and started dancing with the students.

Sophomore Lindsey Porter said, "I loved going to the dance because it was something different to do and I got to sing the Sheryl Crow and Kid Rock song with some of my girls."

The winter formal had a new twist. It was held in a barn—actually the Farmhouse Gallery. About 100 people attended. Many groups came as well as couples.

"It was nice to have it someplace different," said sophomore Erin Blasinski. "The DJ got the crowd going with the Cha-Cha song."

Junior Amy Vincent said, "The dances are nice because everyone can hang out and be someplace off of campus and without being forced to. You only go if you want to."

Junior/Senior was held at the Johnson City country Club. Senior Susan Henderson said, "The best part was the superlatives and Dr. Knowles poem. The worst part was realizing this might be the last time I hang out with all these people."

Juniors Erica and Nathan Branum pose for a picture after dinner at the Peerless. Dinner included chicken, asparagus, rolls and dessert.

Everybody get down! About 100 people attended the winter formal at the Farmhouse Gallery.

Is disco back? No, it's just the cha-cha song. Everyone tries to follow the directions while still keeping beat to the music.

Who couldn't resist these dance moves? Juniors Heather McMullen, Ann Panganiban, Stacy Flynn, and Amy Vincent get down to the music.

Danielle Booth, Meggan Musaus and Melanie Veasey pose in front of a Chinese architecture on Marvelous Monday.

Julie Grimm and Stresa White get ready to make pancakes for brunch.

Marvelous Monday was held on April 14, the week before Easter Break. The theme was Wonderful Wok Day.

Sophomore Melanie Veasey said, "Tsunami softball was the best because there was a lot of competition, yet everyone was participating and having a good time."

Junior Joy Clark said, "The drive-in is always the best because it is a good end to a good day."

Tattoos anyone? Senior Christan McKay helps in face painting.

The cafeteria recieved a makeover complete with pagodas and Chinese lanterns.

Junior Mary Helms gets suited up for the big sumo wrestling match.

Why is Junior Anthony Dunning wearing a diaper? Let's hope it is part of the relay race.

Senior Kristin Kerkvliet goes down the ever-famous water slide.

Don Wallingford and Adam Samaritoni compete in this year's relay race that included painting your face and wearing inflatables.

Freshman Abby Conley plunges down the waterslide.

Monday

Having friendly competition, Sophomores Steven Townley and Aaron Gilley try to see who will win this game.

Why are these girls smiling? Is it because it is a nice day? Is it because they won a game? Who cares? There are no classes to worry about.

Paige Wassel, Annie Tipton, Claire Miller, and Karyn Smithson enjoy the bright sunshine.

Animated People

Tucked behind the colorful hills of east Tennessee, there is a small college. This particular college has many hard classes that demand students to do their best, meaning students often study all hours of the night. This college also has a beautiful campus that seems to echo from the nearby mountains. What sets this college apart from others of its kind, however, is not its successful academic programs or the serene beauty of the campus. Instead, Milligan College is set apart by its people.

Each and every individual at Milligan fits into the community like a piece to a jigsaw puzzle. Milligan professors not only come to teach, but also to befriend. Students here have acquired an instinct to lookout for one another. Often there is cheering at athletic events or laughing at silly jokes. Many good times are spent by the people at Milligan.

As the fall turns to winter and winter into spring, semester after semester this little college keeps on thriving. Everything is not always perfect at Milligan, and we have our share of hard times. But even in the most desperate of times, Milligan's beauty is bright. And this beauty is not found in buildings that soon fall down or trees that wither away, but in the smiles of the people, and will go on forever.

Lindsey Root, Stresa White, Claire Miller, Annie Tipton, Junia Gindlesperger, and Jara Henderson enjoy time off campus.

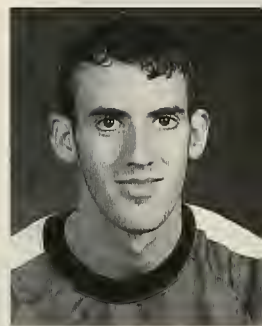

Paige Wassel, Chad Parker, Dimitri Jansen, and Amber Neill photograph Bays Mountain for the exhibit held there for Milligan photography students.

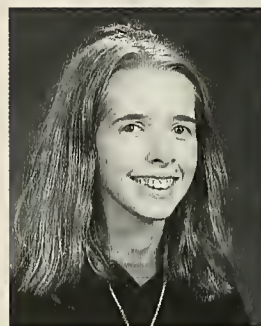

Crystal VanMeter, Kelly Becker, Rachel Bloch, and Lisa Sacca string popcorn to decorate the Hart Hall Christmas tree.

At War with Iraq.

As part of the yearbook survey three questions regarding the current war were asked. We wanted to see how Milligan has already been affected by this war. We are at a time when we are divided as a nation in a decision of whether we should or should not be at war. With many opinions and ideas, it is impossible for anyone to know the right answer. This war has touched each of us in our own way. May God grant peace to all nations, including ours.

“It has made us appreciate those who are willing to do what I have never done.”-Rich Aubrey

“My children have lots of questions that I have to answer carefully.”-Jeff Miller

“It will greatly affect our relations with other nations for the future and the way that other dictators of countries may decide to rule their countries.”-Tira Isaacs

“My cousin is going off to war. Half of the family thinks he is throwing his life away: the other half is really proud of him.” -Missie Mills

“I really have mixed feelings about going to war. I know the Bible says that there will be wars and rumors of wars before God comes back. As far as my family, I do have an uncle who is in the Army and is stationed at Fort Brag until he is told he has to leave. He has a wife and ten-month-old son.”-Penny Moore

“I have a cousin in the Army.”-Randy Moore

“War has given meaning to our faith and lives with those around us.”-Evan Patrick

“I fear that American arrogance will increase. I fear that hate for the United States will grow throughout the Middle East. I hope that I am wrong.”-Nancy Ross

“I can’t decide if we should be at war, but I think we may have made a lot of enemies.”

-Michelle Moore

“Three good friends are there now.”-Steve Clem

“I am very scared to lose my best friend who is leaving in a week for Kuwait.”-Katrina

Hayes

“My dad is Head of Security of a Navy nuclear submarine base and my brother-in-law, with a tow-month-old baby, is a Marine over there right now. I’ve grown up around the military, everyone I’ve ever known has been affected by this. A lot of my friends' dads are over there now. I support our troops 100% because I’ve seen first hand what these people are giving up to go and protect people that don’t even appreciate it.”-Alison Murray

“My brother is in the military so we just pray for his safety and for wisom for the leaders of our country.”-Salem Wood

“I have no idea. Only God knows.”-Jessica Conn

“We have the right to protect ourselves from terrorists, and we are helping to save innocent Iraqis that Saddam is killing. One can accept that or be ignorant.”-Sara Gregory

“I definately am supporting our troops and our leaders, I have faith in them to make the right decisions.”-Jill Miller

“Iraq will become nothing. It will take a long time to get them back on their feet and functioning minimally.”-Alex Williams

“It is very worrisome. My dad is in the Air Force Reserve, so there is a good possibility that he may be called to go over to Iraq.”-Claire Miller

“No, I do not think we should be at war with Iraq. Our choice to do so will change the way the world sees us for the next 20 or more years and will make us a target of terrorism indefinately (whether we win the war or not). The Islamic world will see us as the aggressor and we will have to live with that long-term perception. It will affect people in their 20s and 30s more than those of us over 50.”-Dr. Cook

Have You Ever Been Skinny Dipping?

32% of Milligan students surveyed have been skinny dipping

These are some of the student's responses:

"yes (sheepishly), 3 times!"

"NO!!!"

"yep"

"only in the bathtub."

"Of Course."

"I have been with people who were skinny dipping."

"umm...no"

"Oh YES!!!"

"I am 43 years old, do you really want to know?"

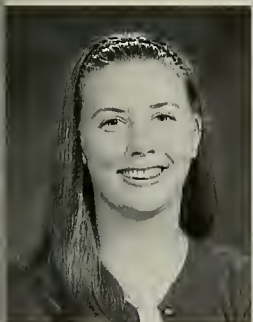

"I'd tell you but I'd have to kill you...(No)."

"Yeah, when I was like 12!"

"Hasn't everyone?"

"Never."

"Yes. I used to have a pool in my backyard and that is why they exist...for skinny dipping."

Dr. Nix retires after 36 years at Milligan

by Tori Watts, courtesy of the Stampede

After 36 years of teaching at Milligan, Gene Nix will retire from his full-time position as professor of chemistry.

Nix said he came to Milligan "not because I was looking for a job, but because it was Milligan."

Over the decades, he has taught various physical science and chemistry courses. This semester he teaches the Earth and Space labs and Instrumental Analysis, and supervises the chemical hygiene and proper disposal of chemicals for the science and photography areas.

According to Dick Lura, chair, area of scientific learning and professor of chemistry, the science department is going to "reconfigure the chemistry program." He said they will have "less flexibility [without Nix] although the actual number of chemistry hours won't change much."

Diane Junker, professor of chemistry, also teaches some nursing classes and Nix taught some of the physical science courses. The chemistry hours offered were taught by three but can also be handled by two professors.

"There is a lower Chemistry enrollment," said Nix. "If we needed three full-time chemists I probably wouldn't retire. There is no need for three full-time people."

Nix will tentatively teach the Earth and Space labs part-time next year.

"I love what I do. I like teaching," he said.

He has been in the teaching profession for 42 years.

Passionate Organizations

What do all the students involved in an organization have? Passion. Passion to share the love of God through their services. Students have several opportunities to be involved in an organization. Some organizations offered include: Service Seekers, Social Affairs, LINC, dorm council, and SGA. Organizations reach out to meet the needs of the community, make our campus a better place, and also allow students to develop relationships with each other.

Two new organizations to Milligan's campus this year are the Milligan Recycling Committee (MRC) and the Student Nurses' Association (SNA). Kari Lefever joined MRC because she thought it was important. "I care about the environment and wanted to get involved," Lefever said. Members of MRC are in charge of checking the recycling bins around campus and emptying them when needed. According to Carol Barron, president of SNA, the club was reintroduced this year "to help prepare future nurses for the nursing field and to inform nursing students of their options." Emily Pierce explained that she joined the SNA because she wanted to be a part of a group that knew what she was going through.

Students involved in organizations are excited about the roles they play on campus and in the community. Being a part of an organization helps students feel like they have found their niche. Anyone with interests in writing, planning activities, making Milligan a great place to be, delivering food packages, or making people smile can be involved in an organization.

Expressive Media

Many students take the initiative to get involved with media at Milligan College. Every other week, the Stampede produces a newspaper with news for the campus, ranging from sports to issues of national concern. Communications students as well as anyone else who wants the opportunity, can get behind the microphone of Milligan's radio station, WUMC 90.5. Heather McMullen and Stacy Flynn, third-year radio DJ's said, "We love being on the radio, especially when people call in and we know they're listening."

Members of the Stampede staff brainstorm story ideas in the newspaper office.

Beautiful Music

Many students collaborated to form a variety of choral groups this year, each featuring a different combination of students and styles. Heritage, one of the most premier musical groups on campus, performed all of their selections a capella. These eight singers traveled through many states performing in churches. Milligan Singers, led by Mrs. Eastridge, consisted entirely of females, and they performed a variety of pieces. Dr. Wakefield also introduced a new group to campus this year, the Milligan Men. This group welcomed any male singers, and they sang music ranging from pop to classical. The concert choir, under the direction of Dr. Wakefield performed both contemporary and traditional pieces in their concerts.

Melodious

Sounds

From performing concerts in Seeger Chapel to providing music during the home basketball games, the Milligan instrumental music department offered a variety of ways for students to get involved. Musical groups included the Pep Band, the Handbell Choir, the Jazz Ensemble and the Chamber Orchestra. While many of the students involved with these musical organizations study music at Milligan, many students were not music majors or minors. Students also had the opportunity to perform with the Johnson City Chamber Orchestra.

Dynamic Sports

There is a word that describes sports in every area. It describes the energy, both on and off the court. This word that is so full of energy can also describe the spectators in the stands: DYNAMIC. It's in volleyball when the team is looking for the kill to finish off an awesome night. It is evident in soccer with that final attempt that slides right through the goalie's hands to win the game. One can see it in basketball with that final, spectacular jump shot that safely puts you ahead of the opposing team. It's in an exciting game of tennis with the sets tied. It comes through in that awesome grand slam in baseball that just sparkles as it goes over the outfield fence. It's in cross country as one pulls ahead of the opposing runner in the last leg of the race. Even in golf as you sink that awesome hole-in-one, dynamic describes the shot and the emotions of the players. Sports are a major part of life on campus. If you're not playing, then you are supporting and cheering the teams on.

The word dynamic can also describe those dedicated fans that are either crammed into a hot, stuffy gym to watch their favorite team, dressed in five layers in the cold making as much noise as possible, or sitting on hard bleachers ecstatic about that home run. Without all the dynamic elements, what would sports be?

Volleyball players Kari Meredith and Chris Figueira show the close bonds the team was able to form this season.

All Heart and Mud

Charlie Klein throws the ball from the sideline.

It's the heart of a team that makes it dynamic. The 2002 Men's Soccer team was just that- all heart. The adrenaline of the drive, the pulse of the game, and the thrill of the win all added to a season worth remembering.

Led by Coach Marty Shirley, these men take the dynamic attitude required of them to dominate as well as represent themselves, the student body, and above all else, Christ.

With five of their season wins being shut-outs, these student athletes gave every game every ounce of their ability, determination and passion.

Although this team was known for being muddy after many practices and games- it rained a lot at Milligan the fall of 2002- there wasn't an inch of that mud that wasn't hard fought and deserved as a feather in the cap of the team.

"I was nervous though, but coming in this season, the freshmen turned out to be great and we were able to really come together as a team," said junior Lisa Buckley. The Lady Buffs finished their season 18 wins and 5 losses as runner-ups in the AAC region. "Soccer is a tough sport- from the conditioning to the games in icy conditions. I love it when it gets really hard," said sophomore Deniece Kitchin. The women will begin their next season with new coach David Dixon.

Coach Layne, Megan Lease, and Lauren Gross celebrate after the girls' awesome meet.

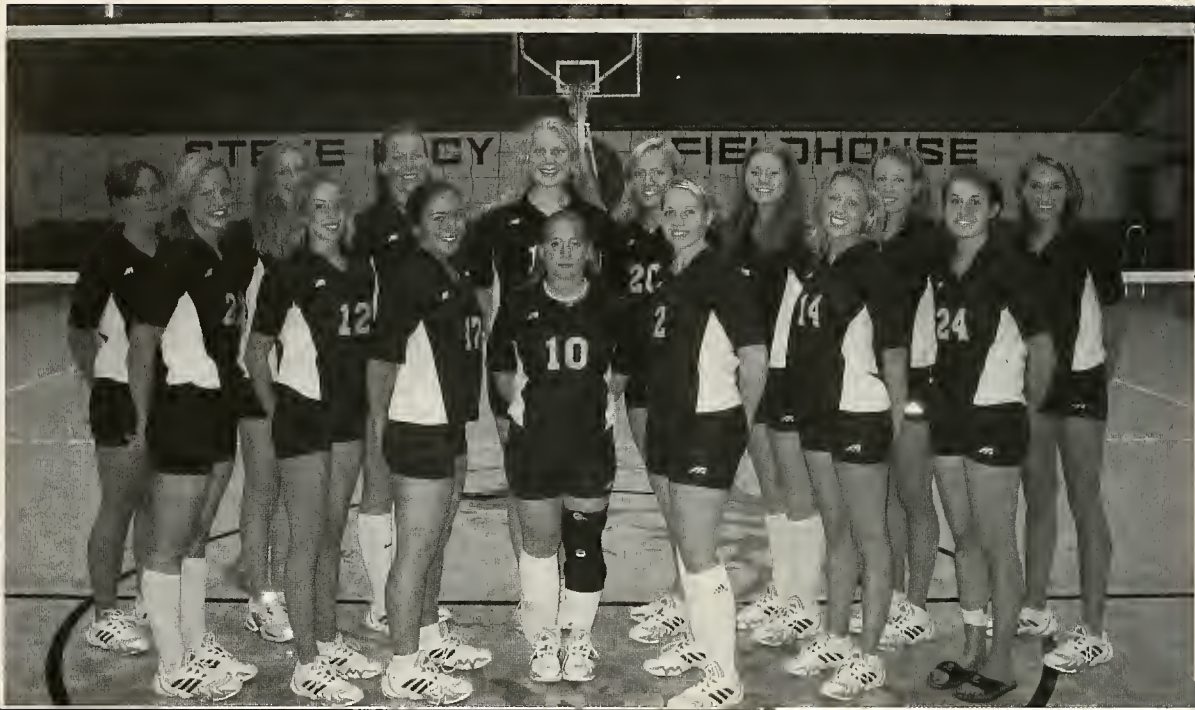

Pushing forward is definitely what the cross country team did this season. They had a successful year and their times reflect that. One major feat for the team was participating in the NAIA Regional Meet and doing well there. Freshman Megan Lease and Chris Wright were the medalists at the regional meet. There was plenty of encouragement and energy from the team. In one race, Chris Wright was given words of encouragement from teammate Ryan Starr.

Ryan had slowed down to let Chris pass him and take the lead.

The women also had a wonderful season. "The team was real close this year, which added to the dynamics, and made our season successful," commented sophomore Lauren Gross. Coach Layne was impressed with their season. "I'm very proud of these young men and women. Milligan College Cross Country has an awful lot of look forward to over the next two or three years."

Digging it out together

Milligan Volleyball always produces a great season. The fans come out to see the fast paced game, to yell at the linesmen for questionable calls and to make rivalries more intense. The Lady Buffs finished their season with 28 wins and a mere 17 losses. "Volleyball players always get a lot of flack for our spandex, but you have to play in what works and our great season proves roughing the spandex is worth it," said senior Heather Lanning. The girls have so many games that bonding becomes essential to get through the trying season. The team ate together, traveled together, and was even sick together.

The girls were blessed this year with a new coach, Kim Hyatt. "Coach is so great, she worked us hard, but was really there for us all season long." said senior Wendy Weaver.

Basketball

Basketball season is always exciting at Milligan. This year the Buffs were ready, armed with new players and many returning starters. They pressed themselves to the max and ended their season 11-11. "We played really hard all season, and despite losing some guys we still managed to have a pretty good season" said sophomore Craig Emmert. The conference games were always close, but the Buffs stayed focus whether they were winning or losing.

During those tough games the men were able to draw from the crowd for support. "The Herd" was a group of students with matching t-shirts who gave their all to cheering on the Buffs.

The freshmen had a tough hill to climb to prove themselves in such a tough conference. All of the freshmen stepped up to the challenge, especially Marc Curry. This Knoxville native provided entertainment with his ball handling skill. "He has a bright future ahead of him, but the highlights of watching the games were his amazing dunks" said senior James Snyder.

The lady's basketball team had an excellent season. There were some hardships at the beginning of the season. They soon gained confidence and began working as a team on the court. They became unstoppable and had an eight game winning streak at the end of the season. "This season has been packed full of hard work and team play," commented Lacy York. "As a team we blended well (it was easy for us all to get along), and this made for a better 'flow' out on the court." The fans are also to be thanked in supporting them this season. "We lost only one conference game at home this season, which shows how great our fans were and how much they encouraged us this year," commented Kristen Kerkvliet. "I will never regret making the decision to play basketball here. I've learned so much from the coaches and my teammates and have had a blast doing so."

Spirit of the game

The Milligan College cheerleaders devoted their hearts and voices to cheer on the basketball teams. "This was the best year cheering that I've ever had. We have really come a long way," said senior Amanda Diefendorf. This year two guys were added to the squad and that provided muscle for a lot more stunts. "The guys this year really helped us and with more along the way next year, we've going to be even better," said Diefendorf. The cheerleaders this year were coached by Danielle Booth, Milligan's Director of Student Life.

"Praise his name with dancing Psalm 149: 3" was the theme for this year's dance team. This group of ladies worked hard to keep the fans excited during basketball half times. The ladies really put their heart into shaking things up this year and at each game the fans always appreciated their hard work. "I love the dance team! I mean where else on Milligan's campus is it legal to dance?" said sophomore Jenni Greenwell.

Achieving Goals

Baseball

Congratulations to the 2003 Men's Baseball team for winning the ACC Conference tournament! Milligan is very proud of the team and all of their hard work and dedication to the game. Leading them all the way to the top were some amazing seniors who inspired the whole team. Senior Rob Maynard took this quote to heart every time he stepped on the field, "You ain't as bad as your worst day, and you ain't as good as your best day." This describes the focus that took the team all the way to the conference championship.

Senior Matt Simmons didn't lead the guys in words, but he lead them with his actions. "Matt was always there doing what had to be done to help us win. He never said much, but his dedication to God was seen in everything he did on and off the field," said junior Brad Hitch. The team will miss their graduating seniors, but never forget the amazing legacy they will leave behind for next year's team.

Milligan swings away to a great season

The Lady Buffs finished with an amazing 26 and 16 regular season record. With so many seniors leading the team, their season was destined to be great. Junior Ellen Stoots said, "All of our seniors worked so hard- we all wanted to play well for them. Rebecca Dawson is an awesome player and I don't know what we'll do without her next season."

Although plagued by injuries, the Lady Buffs still managed to finish at the top of their conference. Sophomore Brandy Waddle burned up the plate this season, leading the conference in strikeouts, wins, and ERA. Whether it was chants for the batters, late night dinners after long double headers, or the tough schedule of playing almost 50 games in less than 3 months, the Lady Buffs were and are amazing individuals and athletes.

Enthusiastic

Women's Tennis

What do Milligan's Women's Tennis team and the WTA have in common? Both have sisters competing and a competitive spirit for the sport. The women's tennis team worked hard to accomplish their goals this year. Their enthusiasm was evident, on and off the court. Sometimes it was even contagious. Often one could hear the ladies talking about yesterday's match or the upcoming match with their friends in the cafeteria. They truly love the sport.

The team worked hard this season. "We have competed well this year, I'm sure not as well as the coach would have hoped, but we started off slow. It is hard to try to play an outside sport when you can't get outside due to weather," said Jessica Conn. The team's biggest contender was Virginia Intermont. They struggled against them in the regular season, but came out on top in the tournament. That was a big accomplishment for them this year. The ladies feel like they had a strong team this year and had a lot of depth. They started slowly, but gained strength and confidence as the season progressed.

The team clicked and had a great time on and off the court. Many new friendships were made and stay strong, even through the off-season. Next year is looking promising and full of action.

Brilliant

Academics

One thing that plays a major factor in a liberal arts education is the wide range of academic study it covers. Through this exposure to a variety of ideas, students gain new appreciation and understanding for the different factors that go into creating a brilliant and thriving community.

Academics enable us to create a more vibrant and complete lifestyle. It is through them that students are exposed to many new ideas, which force them to take on a more active role and become more creative. Through the Humanities program, with its unique tour experience, students are able to experience the history of the past interlaced with thoughts and ideas prevalent today. In the areas of scientific learning and mathematics, students are given the opportunity to excel in present changes and future developments.

Part of being a Christian college means that students are well-equipped for their areas of service in all areas of study, whether it be Bible or business. In the area of the performing and communicative arts, students are encouraged to explore their more artistic side and trying new things.

Students are challenged to become more brilliant in their academics and, in turn, all areas of their lives.

These students have exhibited an active leadership role in a church, an organization, student life activities or an athletic team, along with maintaining a minimum GPA of 2.5. This years' recipients were Grete Riggs and Tony Jones.

Other students were honored on April 24 for their outstanding achievements. A special honor was given to Ross Bader for his participation in the music department and the concert choir when Dr. Wakefield presented Ross with the first ever Ross Bader Concert Choir Award. Leaders

Education and Social Learning

The goals of educators and psychologists are similar: to help others. They try to help their students and clients to better understand both the world around them as well as themselves.

These people actively support through acts of service which support them in all aspects and help understand Christianity and what it means in their daily circumstances.

They brilliantly exhibit their passion for others in many ways, both in and out of the workplace, teaching them about other parts of culture such as the arts, sports and technology, and by filling the role of spiritual leader for those they come in contact with.

Expressive The Arts

The visual, performing and communicative arts department really had a chance to shine this year. However you look at it, the students in all areas of these departments responded brilliantly to the opportunities presented. The music department showered us with recitals and performances. The theater department, even with professor Dick Major out on sabbatical during the spring semester, gave stellar performances that ranged from one act plays to a joint production of Oedipus the King with ETSU.

The broadcast communications students are given the opportunity to experience the reality of daily broadcasting through Perspectives, and the photography students were able to display their work in the community in places such as Bays Mountain and other local outlets.

Practical

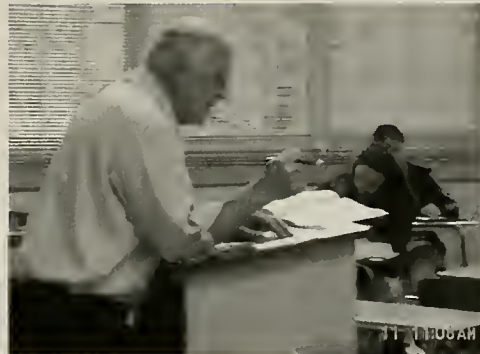

Bible and Business

Although it may seem these two subjects may not be related at all, there is much that is similar. Here is where the rubber meets the road, so to say. Christianity in business Where often the idea of Christian business ethics, or simple ethics for that matter do not seem to exist. We are taught Biblical facts in our Bible classes but practical ways to apply these in all areas, especially in the area of business.

You might think that the business program teaches students only about different topics like accounting, marketing, and advertising as well as understanding how the economy works in today's society. But it is here that Christian students learn to integrate Christ into their businesses and their everyday lives.

Hands-On Science and Nursing

To those who are not science majors, those who are pursuing a degree in nursing or science are people of a different breed. Their lives are filled with labs and experiments, health assessments and dissections, mannequins and plants, and much studying. Both science and nursing majors put in an immense amount of time in and out of their class time, and can be often be found outside of class speaking in a language most non-science majors can understand.

These students deal with the random hours of availability and the fluctuating temperatures of the science building. They spend their time with things like cats, rats, birds, plants, mannequins, and cadavers, often referring to the building as their second home.

Helping Occupational Therapy

The Occupational Therapy program is a masters program where students holding a baccalaureate degree in human performance and exercise science, human development, sociology, biology, or psychology can take their education to the master's level. At the beginning of the year the college struggled to decide whether or not to continue the program, due to industry-wide fluctuations in the Occupational Therapy market. These fluctuations had led to low enrollment, and administrators were unsure if there would be sufficient funds to continue.

After a meeting in October, the trustees decided that the program should in fact continue, with hope for continual growth and expansion. The MSOT program really benefits the college by allowing the masters students to expand into new areas of study.

Experience Humanities Tour

written by Paige Wassel

On May 29, 2002, 42 Milligan students and their five chaperones flew from Atlanta to England, beginning their 28-day Humanities tour. This year, the group spent time in England, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, and Greece, where students gained a new perspective on much of the history and art they had been studying, while at the same time, experiencing cultures different from their own.

Despite almost being stranded in Italy because of a ferry strike, illnesses, and bad weather, the group returned safely to the U.S. on June 26. Here are reflections from some of the travelers about their trip:

An awesome volleyball player, coach, teacher, and young lady*

You've been our pride and joy from your first cry, your first step, your first day of school and now your first adventure into the WORLD. We know you'll succeed in all you strive for. Remember, GOD is with you to carry you through life's ups and downs if you will trust in HIM and seek HIS will.

Much Love,
Dad & Mom

Throughout our son's lives, we, as mothers, pray that God will bless them with wonderful Christian mates. How blessed I am to have two beautiful Christian daughters-in-law!

Congratulations, Susan and Meggan, on your graduation!

Congratulations,

To a faithful son who is so loved!
-Mom

"Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good. His love endures forever." Psalms 136:1

Evan, Our Miracle

Since 1981 we've fallen madly in love with you
And that will continue to increase with time-
But our time is up.

As you become a man

Be God's man! Never leave the Lord out of any decision in your life- Your career, your marriage, your children, your future- Jeremiah 29:11- He has a plan for you, and He can't wait to show it to you. Let Him! His plans are awesome! And we'll be at home cheering for you

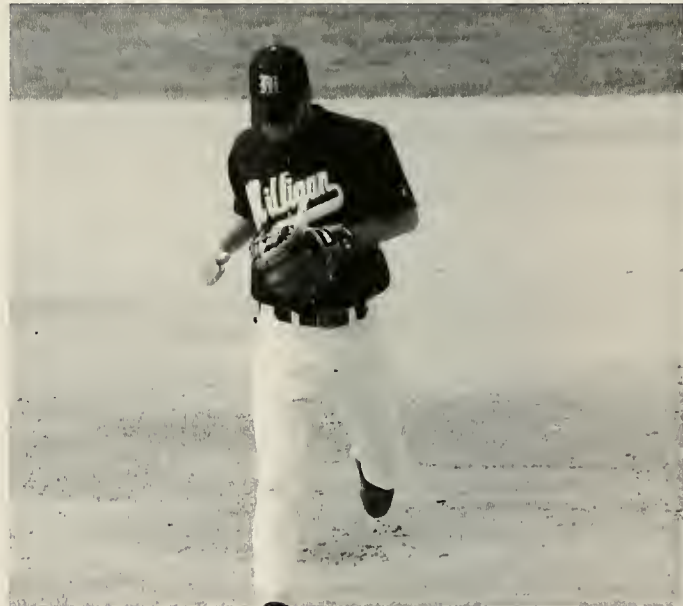

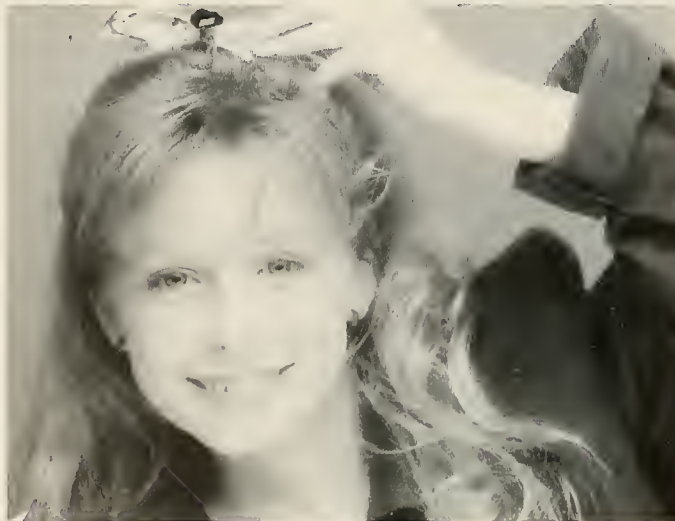

NO MATTER WHAT!

We'll love you forever
We'll like you for always
As long as you're living
Our baby you'll be!!

With all the love we can muster, Mom and Dad
(and Kyle is mighty proud of his big bro' too!)

Amanda, You'll always be our "Star!" You've brought so much joy into our lives. We are proud of you. Congratulations!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Ashley & Bradley

Brian, Congratulations. With Determination and perseverance you've reached your goals both in the classroom and on the field. We are all so proud of you.

Love, Mom & Dad, Lisa & Truett and Bailey
Philippians 4:13

Chris- We are so proud to have you as our son. It seems like just yesterday you were our tiny baby boy that was in such a hurry to get into this world. You have grown into a strong young man. We know God has great plans for you. Love Always, Daddy & Mommy Proverbs 2,3 &4

Salem- It has been a great joy to watch you grow from a tiny little girl into a lovely young woman. God has blessed you with athletic ability, academic achievements, and a wonderful husband, Tim. We are blessed to be your parents. With love and prayers, Mom and Dad Romans 12:2

Fudge-

We love you and are proud of you, David. God Bless You.

Love, Mom, Dad and Grandpa

Congratulations, Jason!

We're so proud of you. "Delight yourself in the Lord; And He will give you the desires Of your heart." Psalm 34:7 We love you, Mom, Dad and Vicky

Christan,

Our little flower, how you have blossomed! Life holds so many firsts, and there's not one you haven't tried, or at which you haven't been successful... academic, journalist, dancer, actress, daughter, friend.

I've often wondered: "Did we choose you, or did you choose us?" I've come to the conclusion that God makes the best matches.

We are so very proud of you and wish you every happiness in all that you do in this life.

With all our love, Momma, Dad, Collin, Spencer, Grand, and Pap

Stephanie, You have brought such joy to our lives. We were proud of you when you were a little girl, and we are more proud of you now. You may not know what the future has to offer, but we know you have so much to offer in the future. Just remember to always seek God in what you do. Because God already knows what your future holds and we are sure He has great plans for you. We love and admire you and we are so lucky to be your family.

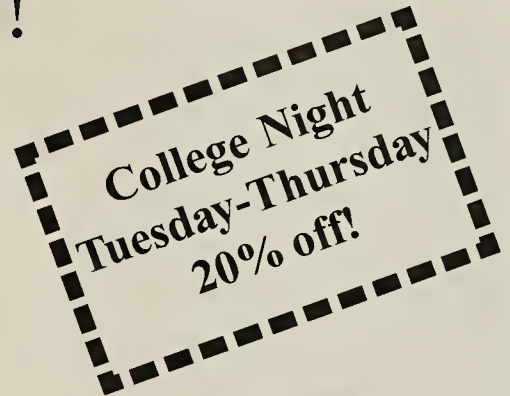

Love you always, Dad, Mom, Kendra, Daniel and Hannah

As a child, you once took crayons and paper and then stood before the rainbow you had created. Now you have taken the gifts of God and painted a far more beautiful masterpiece. This one contrasts not the colors of the rainbow's light, but a young lady who is greatly loved and whose vision has now taken flight. We are all so very proud of you, Stephanie. Mom, Dad, Adam, and Tyler

Living Life

Thoughts of an Editor

It isn't every day that I wake up, ready to tackle every challenge life brings my way. Life, it seems, travels faster than my feet allow me to go. Deadlines, papers, exams, meetings and the list goes on and on for weeks and weeks. What, truly, do I accomplish in one day? Is reading 60 pages of a textbook really a conquest? Is finishing that 15 page research paper really what it's all about?

I don't know about you, but I get hung up on the little stuff of life. When my day isn't going as well as I would like, or when I just have so many tasks on my plate, that I'm sure the weekend won't come, it all comes down to a decision-how am I going to respond to this stress?

Juniors Sara Wallingford and Megan Mooney enjoy the outdoors together.

I'd like to propose that we, as Christians, have a wonderfully unique opportunity to live a life that can look past the stress of the moment. As cliché and anti-western culture as it sounds, I cannot live in this world alone. That's why God brings us together- a beautiful community of brothers and sisters at Milligan College. It's the hope we have in Jesus, and the love we share for his enduring acceptance of us that we shine a light to the world.

The life I live is not my own. It is not me that is able to attain this brilliance, this vibrance. If anything is true and noble and upright and praiseworthy in my life, it is, in fact, Jesus Christ living through me.

- Annie Tipton

Vibrant Life at Milligan

It's something that cannot be described. It's the connection between each and every one of us. It's the life we share together, it's the laughs we share together. It's the food we share, the talks we share, the trips we share, and the burdens we share. It's the faith we share together.

"You are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hidden. Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven." Matthew 5:14,16

We are a thriving, exciting, passionate, dynamic, brilliant, energetic, animated community who lives not as individuals struggling in the darkness. Even better, we are a living, breathing body of Christ- and because of that, we are Vibrant!

Graduates

Class of 2003

Four years. That's how long it has taken, and that's how short it has been.

As much as we have experienced here, they're calling our names and it's time to go, making room for more students to have a part in what we have shared here.

After four years of laughing, studying, growing, eating and living together, on May 11 we say our good-byes and go our separate ways. Every end is a new beginning, and it is exciting to see where life will take us.

We leave here with more than a diploma—more than what qualifies us as educated people. We leave with changed lives. We will take so much of Milligan with us, yet we will leave some of ourselves behind. This moment has been four years in the making, and we're never going to feel like this again.
