Out & About things to do this weekend

1. Mark Nizer (left)

The guy is amazing. A comedian and expert juggler — “the juggler your mother warned you about” — he’s performed everywhere, and he’ll be at the Paramount in Bristol tonight at 7:30. $20 adults, $18 seniors/students, $10 12-under (www.theparamountcenter.com)

2. Milligan Orchestra

It’s the annual spring concert by the Milligan College Orchestra, directed by Kellie Brown, tonight at 7:30, and it’s their first performance in the newly renovated Mary B. Martin Auditorium in Milligan’s Seeger Chapel. (free, www.milligan.edu/arts)

3. Roller girls

The Little City Roller Girls hit the track for a doubleheader Saturday at the Appalachian Fairgrounds vs. the Star City Roller girls, then the Music City Brawl Stars. The bout starts at 5. ($10 advance, $12 door, www.littlecityrollergirls.com)

4. ‘Antony and Cleopatra’ (right)

Johnson City Community Theatre is putting on this classic Shakespeare play, with shows tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2, plus next weekend. $12 for adults, $10 students/seniors (www.jcct.info or 926-2542)

5. Universe of Dreams

This ETSU Culp Center concert tonight at 8 sounds like a wild one — multimedia with music, poetry and stories, featuring music by the Celtic group Ensemble Galilei and readings by NPR’s Neal Conan, plus images from the Hubble Space Telescope.
