

Wonderful

Wednesday

The date is Wednesday April 30, 1969. The time is 6:00 A.M. You are awakened by loud voices in the hall. You get up to investigate the cause of your sudden awakening and find a slip of paper that has been slipped under your door. "Classes dismissed. Everyone report to the chapel at 8:30 this morning." You then join the commotion in the hall. "It's a prank!" "No, I saw some teachers put them under the door." "Maybe the faculty's on strike!" "You don't suppose something has happened to one of the faculty members!" "Maybe we declared war!" You then join the mass exodus to breakfast and then . . . to the chapel.

The time is 8:30 A.M. You are standing with the entire Milligan student body and faculty in front of the chapel. You see TV cameras covering this event . . . what ever it is. But here comes Dr. Johnson and he is unrolling a big scroll. What is he saying? "Whereas the Milligan family is suffering from a severe case of spring fever; whereas the college is under the study of the self-study committee; whereas every body likes picnics and homemade ice cream; whereas Milligan is known as the "Singing campus of the South"; this day is declared to be Wonderful Wednesday."
