Mr. and Mrs. L. W. McCown Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. McCown of 512 East Unaka Avenue, Johnson City, entertained the executive officers of Milligan College with President Emeritus and Mrs. Derthick of Milligan College. The guests were served fruit cocktail in the living room, after which an elaborate and delicious four course dinner was served. The table was decorated very beautifully in red, white, and blue. Reverend and Mrs. Dampier of the First Christian Church were among the guests.

During dinner various ques-

ANCESTRY

On his paternal side he claimed descent from a family of French Huguenots; after the massacre in Paris on St. Bartholomew's Day August 24, 1575, a great many Huguenots fled their native land to take refuge in the new world.

Three brothers, Mark, Martin, and John Hardin were among those emigrants, coming about 1706, and settling in Virginia and the Carolinas.

Mark Hardin was born 1670, in Rouen, France and there married Mary Hogue, who came to America with him. In June 1716, we find Mark Hardin had the first of several land grants in the Elk Marsh Settlement in what was then Richmond and later Faguer County. He was living on Marsh Run in 1717 and therefore, one of the pioneers of Faguer County. Mark Hardin lived and died in 1734 in Pr. William County, Virginia where his will was probated May 21, 1736.

Martin Hardin, one of the older sons of Mark Hardin, went on to Kentucky along the Boone Trail and settled there, becoming the ancestor of Letitia Larue Hopwood.

Henry Hardin, another son of this large family, married Judith

George W. Hardin Number

For some years we have intended to issue what we call the George W. Hardin number of the Buffalo Range. In these times of distress and hardship we may well be guided by the spirit of such a man, therefore, it is an opportune time to get out this long intended edition.

From time to time we have gathered bits of Milligan history. No history of the college would be complete without the name of George W. Hardin.

We dedicate this issue to his memory and honor Mrs. L. W. McCown, his daughter, who is a graduate of the college and now serves on its board of trustees.

George W. Hardin A Loyal Friend of Milligan College

All great institutions are built up by the devotion and consecration of a few lives, inspired by the spirit of God and the love for humanity. This is especially true of Milligan College. Among the consecrated souls who contributed their best to the college are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hardin. During the darkest days of the college period, when it seemed that the college must close her doors, Mr. and Mrs. Hardin spent their fortunes and the very best of their lives to perpetuate the college so sacredly founded with the great principles of "Christian Education, the Hope of the World" and "Character Building First of All". No sacrifice was too great and no time too precious to divert their devotion and loyalty for Milligan College.

Soon after the home going of Mr. and Mrs. Hardin, the trustees very wisely selected their daughter, Mrs. L. W. McCown, to take her father's place in the highest councils of the college.

From her earliest childhood, the college has been one of Mrs. McCown's greatest interests. She was proud of the service her father rendered the college, and was in sympathy with the high ideals of Christian education and character building — she was always ready to give of her best to the college.

Shortly after graduating from the University of Tennessee, Mrs. McCown became a teacher of home economics. She established the first department of home economics at Milligan College, and built the department up by hard and careful work. She designed and aided in the building of the President's cottage. She became deeply interested in and encouraged the beautification of the campus. Through the years she has attended every important function of the college; she has encouraged every forward movement. She has never been too busy to listen to any requests or appeals. She has been ready to make every sacrifice for the upbuilding of every interest of the college. Her home has been the home for the faculty, for the students, and for the friends of Milligan College. Her words of praise and assurance of support have encouraged those who may have faltered at times, and her whole life has been an inspiration to all. It is impossible to disassociate Mrs. McCown from the college in any way, in any phase or activity of the college life. In her hours of meditation and devotion, her petitions arise to the Heavenly Father that the college may be true to the highest ideals and most holy conceptions of life. She has handed the lighted torch to a host of students with a charge that they carry the light high and blaze the way for every other life with whom they may come in contact.

It gives to the editor and staff of The Range sincere pleasure to pay tribute to so great a soul, to so devoted a friend, and to one so deserving of gratitude. In these days, one cannot think of Milligan College without thinking of Mrs. McCown. Long may she live and as long as she lives, we trust she may continue her valuable service as trustee of the college and as counsellor of the college faculty and friend of the students.

Milligan Baseball

Coach Steve Lacey has put another fine Milligan baseball squad on the field this year. The boys have already played three games resulting in three victories. Many of last year's champion team are back this year but several of the new boys are making the older ones hustle to keep their positions.

We hear that pitcher "Big Train" Alexander and catcher "Bo" Brummitt are already being scouted for pro baseball.

News and Views From Out on the Range

Dr. C. M. Eyler

On February 22, 1942, Dr. C. M. Eyler received a communication from the United States Army notifying him to report for physical examination at Spartanburg, South Carolina on Wednesday, March 4th. Needless to say Dr. Eyler passed the examination.

On Sunday, March 8, Dr. Eyler left Milligan College for Washington, D. C. where he entered the service of Uncle Sam as Captain in the Infantry. After a period of 16 years of splendid service, Dr. Eyler is serving Milligan College and all of his friends in a larger way.

We quote below a letter addressed to the alumni of Milligan College. It will be of particular interest to the alumni who have been graduated from Milligan College since 1927. We wish to call attention to one sentence in Captain Eyler's letter, "We must do all that we can do to hasten the end of uncertainty, misrule, tyranny, slaughter, and all the other evils that have crept into our civilization. Each one has a part. I promise Milligan College will never be disgraced by my contribution to the war effort."

Captain Eyler breathes the spirit that all of us at Milligan and throughout the nation breathe in this hour. Something akin to that same spirit breathed by General Stanton during the first World War, when as a representative of General Pershing, he laid a wreath of flowers at the foot of the Lafayette Statue and said, in effect, "Lafayette, we are here, and whatever we have in men and material are at your service to pay the debt of love we owe."

In order that the alumni may know just where and what Captain Eyler is doing we quote his letter as follows:

Professor J. Goff Long
Milligan College, Tennessee

If there were anything which I could tell you about the work in which I am engaged, I should gladly do so; but, at present, it is advisable that I say nothing, for we never know what will be of value to those who are our enemies. I am not in the Secret Service, nor am I studying for that branch of service. I am just a Captain in our mutual uncle's army trying to do my part in a military way to speed the termination of hostilities so that we may all enter again into a normal life; in my case, a life which has been so beautiful for the past sixteen years that I gulp when thinking about it. Whatever that part should be for me to perform I shall gladly give it the best that I have with the Milligan Spirit backing me up. And you may tell all the Buffaloes and Buffalettes that the never-say-die spirit which has been, and is being, bred into them will help them over many a serious difficulty.

How I hated to leave that beautiful life with family and friends on that sequestered hill dedicated to the best that is in Christian Education and living! No one will ever know how I felt and I am glad that no one ever will know, for that is an emotion that is forever sacred to me. Sixteen years of the best of my life remain on the campus, and I hope that God will spare me to return and spend even more than another sixteen years.

We are at War! There can be no peace, happiness, satisfaction, contentment, or stability until this war becomes a war of the past. We must do all that we can do to hasten the end of uncertainty, misrule, tyranny, slaughter, and all the other evils that have crept into our civilization. Each one has a part. I promise that Milligan College will never be disgraced by my contribution to the war effort. I shall maintain the loyalty that I have always shown to our institution.

I think of students, faculty, and alumni often. Best regards.
Cordially your friend,

It was a pleasure to receive the Buffalo Range again.

Milligan, its inspiration, and ideals will always be cherished by me. I do want to keep in touch with my friends of college days.

Too, I want to watch the future of my Alma Mater, because I know it will have something valuable to contribute to the lives of youth.

Sincerely,

Remember When - -

We were happy to receive two good "Remember When" letters and as this issue of the paper takes in two months, we are awarding a year's file of the Range to Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Ernest C. Kegley. The prize each month is a bound loose-leaf volume of a year's issue of the Range. Their contributions are below. Send in your "Remember When" today.

Remember when --- we used to take the annual walk to the top of Buffalo Mountain and back to the college all in the same day. What a hard time the girls had keeping up with the boys, and our faithful teachers that accompanied us as chaperons. Another thing -- that night, how we couldn't sleep for aching heads and feet.

Remember when -- we took a day off to visit the cave and how Mr. Ramsey in helping his girl friend, slipped and fell away down beneath the rocks and as a result no one was ever interested afterwards in visiting the cave.

Remember when --- we had our English class in old room number 9. How our mistakes were written every morning on the black-board and the time we had breaking ourselves of saying "Where are you going to?" Where is it or he at? Remember the morning a certain girl was late and the teacher asked, "Where is she at?" The sentence went on the black-board. "She must be somewhere behind the at." Outcome -- all cured of ending sentences with to's and at's.

George W. Hardin

Lynch and died in 1796 in Pittsylvania County, Virginia. His will gives a grandson, Henry Hardin, his patent land lying on the waters of New River in North Carolina, this last named Henry Hardin was the great grandfather of George W. Hardin.

On his maternal side he was descended from Edmond Williams, who was a native of Wales and emigrated to America and settled in Massachusetts, where he married Lucretia Adams, of the celebrated Adams family. Edmond Williams came into Washington County, North Carolina in 1778, and took up land on Buffalo Creek in Washington County, North Carolina (now Carter County, Tennessee). He was active in the political and civic life of the new county, serving during the Revolutionary War and at its close was appointed by North Carolina to act as one of the three District Auditors for Washington and Sullivan Districts to settle the Revolutionary War Accounts of the State of North Carolina. He was a member of the Sinking Creek Baptist Church, to which he was the largest contributor, and was called in many times to act as a mediator in settling disputes.

He died in May 1795, leaving a large estate, consisting of 1918 acres of land and 9 negroes. His descendants today still live on some of these grants of land, and one grandson, Joshua Williams, gave the site for both Buffalo Creek Christian Church, and Milligan College.

Edmond and Lucretia Williams are buried in the old Williams family cemetery on the banks of Buffalo where sleeps today six generations of their descendants.

Life and Education

George Duffield Williams Hardin was born on September 1, 1864, at Cranberry, North Carolina, the first son of Jordan Council and Julia Williams Hardin. The former, John C. Hardin, was a native of Boone, North Carolina, being born on the aforementioned New River grant, and the latter Julia Williams, of Buffalo Creek, Carter County, daughter of George D. Williams, and fourth generation from Edmond Williams.

Jordan C. Hardin owned the land where the Cranberry Iron Mines were located, which he operated from about 1850 until 1861. During the war between the States, he made iron for the Confederacy. In 1867 he moved to Tennessee and bought land between Buffalo Creek (now Milligan College) and Johnson City where he operated a farm for a number of years. He was a surveyor and was actively engaged in securing the rights of way for the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad. He had disposed of the Cranberry Iron Mines and this road was being promoted to market this ore. Upon the completion of the railroad he was appointed the first railroad depot agent in Johnson City, which position he held until his death in June 27, 1898.

He and his wife were members of old Buffalo Creek Christian Church and were among the charter members in 1871 of the First Christian Church in Johnson City, which church he served as an elder and trustee all of his life. His name is on the first subscription list in 1867 for the building fund for Buffalo Male and Female Institute, now Milligan College.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardin were active in the early life of the college, Mr. Hardin serving as first secretary of the Board of Trustees. Mrs. Hardin died May 28, 1886, and was buried in the Williams Cemetery. Her remains were later placed beside her husbands in Oak Hill, Johnson City.

George Williams Hardin was reared at the Hardin homestead on Sinking Creek, two miles south of Johnson City, and attended school on Science Hill, where in 1866 a building had been erected which served as both school and church for the young village which later became Johnson City. The name of Master George Hardin in the Declaration Class is found in an old program of Science Hill Male and Female Institute, dated May 26, 1871. The entire Hardin family of four children attended Buffalo Institute driving back and forth each day from their home. During the winter term the girls usually stayed with the grand parents, George D. and Lucinda Williams.

George attended seven years in the academy and college, and had the distinction of being the youngest member (only 17 years of age) of the first graduating class of Milligan College in May 1882. He evidently carried his love for oratory with him for there is in existence today his oration entitled - "My Mother, My Country, and My God," which was given in a declamation contest while a student at Milligan.

BUSINESS LIFE

He operated a flour mill at Milligan College and farmed, and later owned and ran a brick-yard with H. T. Hoss in Johnson City.

He first entered the service of the railroad beginning in 1886 as a switchman for the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad Company and the Linville River Railroad Company until his demise, serving in the capacities of brakeman, conductor, yardmaster, station agent, master of transportation, and in July 1901 was made superintendent; in 1905 Vice-President and general manager and a director. He was a director of the American Short-Line Railroad Association. Under his personal supervision the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad was extended to Boone, North Carolina. The success which he attained, entitles him to be classified as one of the most efficient railroad officials of this country. Up to the time he assumed the management of this railroad it had never paid any return on the investment involved but under his supervision it constantly prospered, and during one year it paid the largest dividend on the capital invested of any short-line in the United States.

In 1919 when the Johnson City Shale Brick Corporation was organized he was made its president and remained in active charge of the direction of its affairs until his demise. His close application to business affairs impaired his health and after four weeks of illness his demise occurred on May 19, 1922.

On February 2, 1888 he was married to Miss Nola Francis Cameron, a daughter of Dr. James M. and Mary E. (Tipton) Cameron, natives of Elizabethton, Tennessee. Dr. Cameron was a surgeon during the Civil War serving with the Federal Army. After the of the war he resumed practice in Elizabethton and was one of the foremost medical men of his day. He was one of the charter member of the Presbyterian Church of that place, and was very active in this church until his demise on December 27, 1897. His widow died in 1907. To the union of Mr. and Mrs. Hardin were born four children, Mary Julia, who is the wife of Leonidas W. McCown, a wholesale dry goods merchant in Johnson City; James Council, who is in the insurance business in Roanoke, Virginia; Anna, whose demise occurred August 17, 1897 (age 17 months); and George D., who is associated with the Clinchfield Railroad in Johnson City.

Politically Mr. Hardin gave his endorsement to the democratic party, but he always voted for the candidate favoring prohibition. He never sought nor desired public preferment on his own account but he was ever cognizant of the duties and responsibilities as well as the privileges of a good citizen, and his influence was ever on the side of advancement and improvement. His religious faith was that of the Christian Church. He was an elder and one of the trustees of the First Christian Church of Johnson City and has always been actively engaged in the work of the Sunday School from the time when as a lad he had come in early from the farm in time to care for the fires until at his death when he was a teacher of a class of boys. He was chairman of the Tennessee Board of the Christian Church and was a trustee of the Educational Endowment Fund of the Christian Church. In 1905 he was elected treasurer of Milligan College which office he held until his demise. During his period of trusteeship this college has been enlarged and has grown until today it is one of the best equipped institutions in this section and its success stands as a monument to his memory. As a public spirited man he was an active member of the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Hardin was a man of high intelligent attainments, a great leader and a clear concise and forceful writer. He had a keen foresight and innate executive ability. His skill and abilities were recognized by the series of rapid promotions which came to him and the great efficiency and esteem of all with whom he came in contact. Mr. Hardin exemplified in his life the fact that man is not the possessor but the custodian only of the money which he has earned by hard and unremitting toil. None was devoted to selfish pleasure, but was given with unsparing hands to relieve distress, to provide opportunity for struggling youth, to make a triumphant church and to establish everywhere an abiding and unyielding faith in the love of a living God.

He loved athletics and probably was on the first baseball team Milligan College ever had. He was a constant attendant at the baseball games.

The funeral services were held by President H. J. Derthick of Milligan College, assisted by Reverend W. E. Sweeny, pastor of the First Christian Church and Reverend Jason L. McMillian, pastor of the Presbyterian Church and the Rotary Club had charge of the music. The funeral was held on the lawn of his home on East Watauga and a special train on the East Tennessee and Western Carolina Railroad brought the students and faculty members of Milligan College to the funeral. The graduating class of 1922 officiated as honorary pallbearers. Interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery, Johnson City.

MRS. HARDIN

Mrs. George W. Hardin --- for thus she delighted to be called --- was a rare person. Never was there a more devoted couple, each to the other. She was devoted to her husband in the extreme and in her quiet dignified way, stood always ready to assist him in everything he undertook. He was her very life, and she was never quite able to overcome the great sorrow of his loss, yet she continued her loyalty to those things he loved and took her place in the church life and as a member of the Board of Trustees of Milligan College, helping with her means and her presence on all occasions.

She was a born executive and rendered efficient service in everything she ever undertook. Like her physician-father, she could enter a sick-room, where she always carried smiles and sunshine. There she soothed the fevered brow with one hand, while with the other, she administered to the wants and needs of the entire family. She loved her children, her home, and her friends and never tired of doing nice and thoughtful things for people.

She died on July 15, 1930 in Johnson City, and was laid to rest beside her husband in Oak Hill Cemetery. Most fitting was her self-chosen epitaph -- our Master's praise of Mary -- "She hath done what she could."

SOME TRIBUTES TO MR. HARDIN

"Mr. Hardin was a slave to his work and he carried on until he was forced to bed. It was a large work, the management of the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad which he handled in a big way; in later years he became the ruling spirit of the Johnson City Shale Brick Corporation but his greatest work was larger and better than either of these -- his church and Milligan College. For years he has been the back-bone, financially of this fine institution. In season and out of season he has contributed of his time, talent, and money, and there are hundreds of men and women, boys and girls, who now and in years to come will call his name blessed. Mr. Hardin was a reticent nature, quiet, and unostentatious. He was a charitable and a big giver. He was a rare citizen with strong opinions, and useful in the extreme Johnson City and this section has been blessed by his spirit and works. The dividends he has declared in Christian manhood and womanhood will grow and expand with the years." -- from the Johnson City Staff

"George Hardin was not a preacher in that he did not deliver sermons from the pulpit. However, his life was one eloquent sermon.

"In the business world he was known as the first president and general manager of the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad and president of the Johnson City Shale Brick Corporation. In the Johnson City Church, he was the ever present sweet spirited officer, councillor, and princely giver. In the educational sphere he was the treasurer of the board of trustees of Milligan College and for many years the chief financial supporter of that institution -- for many years, before he could interest other men of means, he practically carried Milligan on his shoulders. In the community, he was a substantial friend to every good cause. In the brotherhood at large, he was prominent in conventions and congress and identified with all loyal forward movements. Eloquent preacher? Yes. He preached the gospel of Christ in his life with his attitude and means." -- from the Christian Evangelist.

"He was the first in all civic movements and was one of the foremost men; besides, Milligan has lost one of its best citizens." -- Governor A. Taylor.

"As a friend and fellow member of this club I can testify to the love and deep regard in which we held him. But I do not know, and the world will never comprehend the beneficencies of his life nor the extent of his charity. He labored in secret not letting his right hand know what his left hand was doing, but of this we may be assured that could each recipient of his benefactions drop rose buds upon his tomb he would sleep today beneath a wilderness of flowers.

"Taking as an example his Master's life, who gave all to redeem man-kind, so he gave all for his church and Milligan College. This is not figuratively true but literally true. And in all the experiences of my life he stands out pre-eminent as the only one who reversed the divine law requiring the giving of a tenth, but reserving that meager portion for himself.

"Thoughtful men everywhere are agreed that not only the spiritual but the temporal salvation of our life as well, must be attained in the ideals and principles inculcated through the medium of christian education. George Hardin grasped that truth more comprehensively and effectively than any of us; it is gratifying to know that he lived long enough to see his faith in Milligan College vindicated and its fund as a moulder of christian character assured. If this college owes its preservation to him, and not one doubts it, then no man may measure the breadth and the depth of the influences which he set in motion, and like the ripples upon the bosom of the lake, will go on broadening and expanding until they break upon Eternity shore." -- from the Johnson City Rotary Club by Sam R. Sellers.

tions were asked. Professor Sam J. Hyder, the oldest member of the faculty in view of service, won the prize by answering all the questions correctly. Following are the questions as prepared by the hostess concerning Milligan College:

1. Where was the first school at Milligan College, by whom was it taught?
2. When was Buffalo Male and Female Institution organized and by whom?
3. When did Professor and Mrs. Hopwood come to Buffalo Creek?
4. When was Milligan College chartered and for whom named?
5. Who was its first President, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees and the Secretary of the Board of Trustees?
6. When did the first class graduate, and how many members were in it? Who had the first and second honors?
7. How many graduates have gone out from Milligan College since 1882?
8. Name the presidents of Milligan College and their term of office?
9. Name the two mottos of Milligan College.

After dinner the guests enjoyed several contests at the close of which President Derthick led a short devotional service. The guests left the delightful and hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. McCown with renewed enthusiasm for the college and inspired with the hope for a greater and more glorious Milligan.

Answers to the questions:

1. There was a village school at Cave Springs taught by Jane Taylor daughter of Dr. Caswell C. Taylor, and later Jane married Abdiel U. Kitzmiller, and then Rev. Samuel H. Millard. This school was in the 1850's.
2. Buffalo Male and Female Institute was organized by Wilson Gilvan Barker, who came to Buffalo Creek prior to May 1866, and taught in the Buffalo Christian Church, then a log structure. The earliest record of his labors is a receipt dated May 28, 1866 given to George D. Williams for $5.87 pd. in 9 bushels of oats @ .50 and $1.37 in cash, on a bill of $18.50 tuition for the past school term. This antedates the charter of Buffalo Male and Female Institute, dated December 10, 1866, granted at the 34th General Assmby of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee. The first brick college building was built in 1867, on land donated by Joshua Williams, who lived on Buffalo Creek.
3. Professor and Mrs. Hopwood came to Buffalo Creek from Sneedville, Tennessee, in August, 1875, and bought the property from Bro. Barker.
4. Milligan College was chartered in 1882 and it was named by President Josephus Hopwood for Robert Milligan, a professor in the College of Bible, Lexington, Kentucky.
5. Josephus Hopwood was its first president. Samuel W. Hyder was an early president of the Board, J. C. Jordan an early Secretary and George T. Williams was Secretary for many years.
6. The first class graduated May 14, 1882, with 10 members, 8 boys, and 2 girls. Lucy Hardin and Lula Crockett tied for first honors, and George W. Hardin, its youngest member, won second honors.

March 11, 1942

I am sorry that it was necessary for you to call to my attention the past subscription dues to The Buffalo Range, however, you will please find inclosed my check.

The Buffalo Range is the most interesting publication Milligan has to offer her alumni and no graduate should miss a single copy.

As I have read with interest the location and occupation of my fellow Alumni, I will now be placed on record as follows:

I am employed in the sales department of the Standard Oil Company of Penn., and have been with this company for seven years. Enjoy my work. Am married and have one son.

Yours very truly, bulletin. It would have been sent sooner but we have been operating a family hospital. Our eight year old son was extensively, but not deeply, burned just before Christmas. After a long period of convalescence, he and our four year old daughter contracted Scarlet Fever. We sincerely hope this winds up our season.

Your "Remember When" column is a fine idea. "Dave" Kidwell, as "Chester Proteclar", swinging on the chandelier in a dramatic production still brings a chuckle. Also, do you remember when even knickers were taboo for gir's and if you wore a dress without sleeves a scarf had to be carefully draped around your shoulders. I better quit right now or I'll be writing a book.

We wish success to the Bulletin and the memories it revives, especially since priorities and defense work will probably make it impossible to visit Milligan this June. We would be glad to see any of our old Milligan friends who might be in the vicinity of Cleveland. We're listed in the telephone book — look us up!

Sincerely,
